THE ENGLISH CYCLOPÆDIA.

THE CYCLOPÆDIA OF GEOGRAPHY.

In 6 Vols., cloth, £3; or 3 Vols., half morocco, £3 12s.

THE CYCLOPÆDIA OF ARTS AND SCIENCES.

*. The price of the complete Work, in Twenty-two Volumes, bound in cloth, is £12; and in Double Volumes, half bound in morocco, £14 4s.

THE CYCLOPÆDIA OF GEOGRAPHY embraces the Physical Features of every country, the Statistics of its department, and its Cities and Ports of Commerce: as well as recording its History to the most recent period.

THE CYCLOPÆDIA OF BIOGRAPHY may fairly be stated to be the most complete Biographical Dictionary extant. It includes notices of Living Persons of contemporary celebrity; and of others recently deceased.

THE CYCLOPÆDIA OF NATURAL HISTORY includes the contributions of the most eminent Naturalists. In BOTANY, those by Dr. Lankester, Dr. Lindley, and Dr. Royle; in GEOLOGY, those of Sir Henry de la Beche, Mr. Horner, and Professor Phillips; in MINERALOGY, those of Mr. B. Phillips and Professor W. Turner; in ZOOLOGY, those of Mr. Broderip, Professor Forbes, Mr. Ogilby, and Mr. Waterhouse; in COMPARATIVE ANATOMY and PHYSIOLOGY, those of Mr. Day, Professor Paget, and Dr. Southwood Smith.

THE CYCLOPÆDIA OF ARTS AND SCIENCES, embracing as it does all subjects not belonging to either of the above Divisions, is necessarily the most important and comprehensive. The following List mentions the principal subjects comprised in it:—

Mathematics and Astronomy; Physical Sciences, Optics, Acoustics, Dynamics, Electricity, Magnetism, Meteorology; Chemistry; Navigation and Military Sciences; Materia Medica, Medicine, Surgery; Architecture, Civil Engineering; Manufactures and Machinery; Painting, Sculpture, Antiquities; Engraving, Music, &c.; Rural Economy; Philology, Mental Philosophy; Government and Political Economy; Law and Jurisprudence.

FROM THE “TIMES,” OCT. 4, 1861.

“As regards the contents of this Cyclopædia, it is impossible to give any sufficient impression of an aggregate which includes somewhere or other all the information generally required upon every conceivable topic. A good Encyclopædia, as every one knows, is a compendious library, and though students may require further information upon some points than its summaries contain, even students will be surprised in this instance to find the materials at their disposal when they once adopt the habit of resorting to its pages. For all practical purposes a large proportion of the articles may be said to be exhaustive; they are accurate to a degree which will strike even those who know what pains have been taken to render them so; and as they are concise as well as full, every column being rammed like a sky-rocket, the owner has a reservoir out of all proportion to the library shelves it will occupy.”

FROM AN ARTICLE BY DAVID MARSH, IN “MACMILLAN'S MAGAZINE” FOR MARCH.

“Whoever wants an Encyclopædia, extensive and yet cheap, and compiled throughout on the principle of compendious and accurate information on all subjects rather than on that of collected individual dissertations, cannot do better than procure the ‘English Cyclopædia’ of Mr. Charles Knight. There are other Encyclopædies which may have their characteristic excellencies, or even, in some things, superiorities; and of such a work as the new edition of the ‘Encyclopædia Britannica,’ eclipsing, as it does, even the national fame of the previous editions, the country may well be proud. But, as a digest of universal knowledge which shall serve for the popular and miscellaneous purposes of all, and at the same time furnish materials and abstracts for those who are studying special subjects, and aim at scientific and exact science, the ‘English Cyclopædia’ may be confidently recommended.”
